

Photo Credits: Bristol Bay Fishermen, Bob Waldrop; Bristol Bay Landscape, Robert Glenn Ketchum

Bristol Bay, Alaska is a national treasure... and an economic powerhouse. This American paradise is home to the greatest wild salmon fishery on the planet, which provides 14,000 jobs and generates $480 million in annual revenue.

But global mining giants Anglo American, Rio Tinto and Northern Dynasty Minerals are targeting Bristol Bay for their monstrous Pebble Mine project. This gargantuan gold and copper operation would be the largest open pit mine in North America and would generate up to 10 billion tons of toxic mining waste that would have to be contained forever in an active earthquake zone.

A comprehensive study by the EPA has confirmed that the Pebble Mine would devastate Bristol Bay's salmon runs, along with the Alaskan Native communities that depend on wild salmon for survival.

Mr. President, you can prevent the economic and environmental devastation of Bristol Bay and secure a lasting environmental legacy for your administration.

I urge you to direct EPA to use its authority under the Clean Water Act to prohibit the Pebble Mine.

Protect Bristol Bay. Stop Pebble Mine.
www.StopPebble.org

Natural Resources Defense Council